Archaeologists have discovered thousands of seals, usually made of steatite, and occasionally of agate, chert, copper, faience and terracotta, with beautiful figures of animals such as unicorn bull, rhinoceros, tiger, elephant, bison, goat, buffalo, etc. the realistic rendering of these animals in various moods is remarkable. The purpose of producing seals was mainly commercial. It appears that the seals were also used as amulets, carried by the persons of their owners, perhaps as modern day identity cards. The standard Harappan seal was a square plaque 2×2 square inches, usually made from the soft river stone, steatite.
 Every seal is engraved in a pictographic script which is yet to be deciphered. Some seals have also been found in gold and ivory. They all bear a great variety of motifs, most often of animals including those of the bull, unicorn, tiger, etc.
